Remarks 'very disheartening'

Senator mocks Spence. Idle No More organizer wants consequences for Brazeau comments on chief's physique, says it's too late for an apology

MORGAN MODJESKI
Metro in Saskatoon

Some Idle No More organizers want repercussions for Canadian Sen. Patrick Brazeau after he made what they say are inappropriate comments about Attawapiskat Chief Theresa Spence at a Conservative fundraising event.

Brazeau referred to Spence's "so-called hunger strike" in addressing about 80 people at a Legion hall in the Ottawa suburb of Orleans on Tuesday, and mocked her physical shape.

"I was sick two weeks ago," Brazeau said. "I had the flu and I lost five pounds. I look at Miss Spence, when she started her hunger strike, and now?" Brazeau added as a voice in the hall called out, "She's fatter," which drew laughter from much of the audience.

Erica Lee, one of the many organizers of the Idle No More movement and the person responsible for managing the Idle No More Facebook page that has more than 90,000 likes, said although she's not surprised by the senator's remarks towards Spence, she feels they were inappropriate and there should be consequences.

Erica Lee, an Idle No More organizer, says she's frustrated by Patrick Brazeau's comments.

"It is frustrating, because he is a First Nations senator and to have a person who you think would understand the issues behind being a First Nations person, to have him make extremely racist and sexist comments towards Theresa Spence, continuously, is very disheartening," said Lee.

"His disrespect of women and his fellow indigenous women is extremely reprehensible, just because of the amount of violence that goes on against indigenous women and to the extent to which we're dehumanized in Canada."

Lee added she feels Brazeau's position as a senator should be reviewed, but noted it may be too late for an apology.

"A public apology would be nice, but I feel he's made so many controversial remarks like this, that it's almost past the point of reparation," she said.

Metro tried to reach Brazeau for comment, but phone calls to his office were not returned.

Previously under fire

The Spence incident isn't the first time Brazeau has been condemned for making inappropriate comments toward women.

- He was criticized for insulting Canadian Press reporter Jennifer Ditchburn, saying in a tweet, "@jenditchburn while u smile Jen, others suffer. Change the D to a B in your last name and we're even! Don't mean it but needs saying."

Hitting the brakes

MADD tackles Sask. drunk drivers

The head of MADD Canada says it's time to put the brakes on drunk driving in Saskatchewan, where impaired driving rates are the highest in the country.

Andrew Murie told reporters in Regina that Saskatchewan needs to do a lot more to stop impaired driving.

Murie says the province could take several steps, such as setting a zero tolerance policy for drivers under the age of 22 or impounding vehicles for longer.

Highways Minister Don McMorris says the province has lowered the allowable legal limit and stepped up enforcement.

Saskatchewan gets geared up for Super Bowl 2013

JANE CAULFIELD
Metro in Saskatoon

While the beloved Saskatchewan Roughriders may be in hibernation, football fans across the province are gearing up to get an off-season fix of their favourite sport this Sunday with the Super Bowl.

And we here at Metro asked a couple of well-known Saskatchewan football fans about their predictions and their plans for game day.

"I will cheer for Ravens by default because as a Raiders fan there can be only one Bay area team," said Premier Brad Wall.

Wall said he plans on watching the game with his family at home in Swift Current.

Roughriders' Assistant General Manager Jeremy O'Day also places his winning predictions on the Baltimore Ravens.

"They had a little bit tougher route to get to the Super bowl and they have a little more veteran team than the 49ers. But the 49ers are playing so good, it's hard to predict," said O'Day.

On game day, O'Day said his Superbowl tradition is to bring out the deep fryer and make chicken wings with a few special, and secret, sauces.

"I grew up in the Buffalo, N.Y., area, so at Superbowl time we'd always eat chicken wings."

A champ's prediction

Carisa Polischuk, a defensive back for the Western Woman's Canadian Football League 2012 champion team, The Valkyries, said she thinks the San Francisco 49ers will take the Super Bowl this year.

"It's kind of a cool story with a new quarterback potentially being a Super Bowl champion in his first year with the 49ers — it will be interesting," she said.

She said she will be going to a big party with friends on game day, adding that the party will include a trivia game based on NFL and Super Bowl history.

Name for new stadium still uncertain

The naming rights for Regina's new stadium are still up for grabs.
JEFF MACKEY/METRO

Now that Regina's new stadium has funding and a concept, one big question is still left unanswered: What are we going to call the thing?

Mosaic first got the naming rights to the current stadium in 2006, signing a 10-year deal. The new stadium should be completed in 2017.

Metro asked Saskatchewan Roughriders CEO Jim Hopson whether or not the Riders are looking into selling the naming rights of the new stadium.

"We still have a current deal with the existing stadium, with Mosaic, but as we go forward and now that this is becoming more of a reality and there is a definite timeline we will enter into discussions," said Hopson.

Hopson also said the discussions would start "first of all with Mosaic, who has been a great partner, but we know there is going to be a lot of interest in the market."

Mosaic has also been happy with the current arrangement, originally struck in 2006, but wouldn't speculate as to what may happen in the future.

"We have built a very good relationship with the Saskatchewan Roughriders over the years," said Brad DeLorey, director of public affairs at Mosaic in Saskatchewan. "We will certainly take a hard look and we've followed this process with the stadium since it has begun."

For their part, Mosaic says being associated with the Riders has helped boost their public image.

"It instantly helped us brand this company that was very new in 2006 as well as create a high level of engagement amongst our workforce," said DeLorey. "It has definitely been a win-win for both parties"

Respected science journal Nature supports Keystone XL pipeline

Editorial. Publication states the oilsands will be developed anyway and aren't that 'dirty'

Nature argues that the oilsands pose serious environmental challenges in Canada, but that's not Obama's business. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

A prestigious science journal has gone to bat for TransCanada's Keystone XL pipeline, urging the White House to greenlight the controversial project and arguing that Alberta's oilsands aren't as "dirty" as some contend.

"The administration should face down critics of the project, ensure that environmental standards are met and then approve it," Nature said in an editorial this week.

The editorial, entitled "Change For Good," argued that the pipeline won't determine whether the oilsands are developed.

"Nor is oil produced from the Canadian tarsands as dirty from a climate perspective as many believe (some of the oil produced in California, without attention from environmentalists, is worse)," the editorial reads.

"Tarsands development raises serious air- and water-quality issues in Canada, but these problems are well outside Obama's jurisdiction."

Nature is among the few science journals that still publish original research articles, many of them highly technical, on a range of scientific topics. As such, it's one of the most respected publications of its kind.

The editorial argues that there are several benefits for U.S. President Barack Obama if he approves the pipeline.

"Obama can bolster his credibility within industry and among conservatives," Nature says.

"The president can also take advantage of rising domestic oil and gas production to defuse concerns over energy security. And the fact that U.S. emissions are apparently dropping, thanks to the economic crisis and the ongoing shift from coal to gas ... further plays into his hands."

Sickly look. Jim Flaherty reveals rare skin disorder

The skin condition afflicting Federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty is one that can generally be brought under control with a regimen of drugs. But getting there may take awhile, doctors say.

Flaherty reluctantly revealed in an interview with The Globe and Mail this week that he is suffering from bullous pemphigoid, an uncommon and sometimes painful auto-immune condition.

Questions about his health have been swirling for months after the formerly trim finance minister put on a noticeable amount of weight. More tellingly, his face appeared to balloon, a telltale sign of the use of corticosteroids.

That swelling is so common in people taking oral corticosteroids there is even a term for it — moon facies — that describes the effect.

Bullous pemphigoid is one of a class of skin diseases known as auto-immune blistering disorders, says Dr. Michael Camilleri, an expert on the condition who works at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

Bullous pemphigoid is the most common of these disorders and, fortunately for Flaherty, is not the most severe of the diseases in this class. It is also a condition that is very responsive to treatment, Camilleri says.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Still, the disease can be unpleasant, with fluid-filled blisters forming in creases in the skin — the groin, the armpits — or on the torso or limbs. Sometimes the blisters form in the mouth or on other sites of mucous membranes, such as around the eyes.

The disorder is the result of the auto-immune system running amok, developing antibodies to a protein that is found in the skin. That's why the blisters form.

Flaherty is taking an oral steroid called prednisone. Camilleri says the drug works quickly to mitigate the symptoms of bullous pemphigoid, including the intense itching that accompanies the blisters.

Youth education the next step in avalanche safety

Expanded services dependant on dollars.

Education in remote mountain communities a priority for CAC

MATT KIELTYKA
Metro in Vancouver

Avalanche safety has come a long way since the lives of seven Calgary students were lost during an ill-fated field trip in British Columbia's backcountry 10 years ago today.

Fatality rates have stabilized in the face of increasing backcountry use, more people are getting properly trained and equipped before heading into the mountains and public awareness is on the rise.

Those successes can be directly attributed to aggressive reform after the 2003 Connaught Creek avalanche, but the Canadian Avalanche Centre (CAC) is well aware more work could be done.

But that becomes a question of funding. And it's an unanswered question.

"It depends a lot on what people want us to do," said Karl Klassen, acting executive director of the CAC.

"If people are happy with our services the way they are, I think we're in good shape."

The CAC — which, among many other tasks, is responsible for public avalanche forecasting and sets the standards for public avalanche-training courses and equipment — has a projected budget of $1.8 million this year.

Its federal funding enters the final year of a three-year cycle in 2014 and then it's back to the negotiating table.

Klassen doesn't think securing funding to maintain the CAC's status quo will be a problem, but some (both within the CAC and outside) are asking whether that level of service goes far enough.

"There have been a number of calls to expand services," Klassen said.

"For example, we don't do forecasts for the north Rockies. We're working on a project to see how we can go about it, but it will take more money."

Klassen sees the centre focusing on three pillars in the coming years: world-leading public avalanche information and bulletins, outreach and awareness programs and expanded youth education.

The third piece of that puzzle is perhaps the most critical going forward, but is also underfunded.

"We'd love to expand youth education but we just don't have the resources for it," said Klassen. "There are many mountain communities, where avalanches are a fact of life, that just don't have much in the way of (avalanche) education."

He argues that children from kindergarten to Grade 8 in those communities must "be aware of the avalanche problem" and be taught skills that will serve them throughout life.

Even urban communities need greater youth education programs.

"Tons of people from Calgary go to the mountains every weekend," Klassen said. "(Education is) one of the cornerstones of what we should be doing, but unless we secure long-term additional funding, we just can't do it."

It's an important decision that the CAC, and governments, will need to make over the next two years if Canada hopes to stay at the forefront of avalanche safety.

Ongoing process

Parks Canada strives to stay ahead of curve

Parks Canada is always working to be at the forefront of avalanche safety.

Mountain-risk specialist Grant Statham says fine-tuning and tailoring of public alerts, bulletins and information is an ongoing process.

"I would say what you see in the public domain today — we're a year or two ahead of that," said Statham. "At least, I hope so. We're always looking at how to better communicate with people. We want them to be better educated, that's the most important thing."

Nearly 17 years ago, Beth Stewart got a phone call that no parent ever wants to get.

Her son, Trevor Petersen, a legend in the world of extreme skiing, was killed at the height of his career in an avalanche in February 1996 in the mountains of Chamonix, France.

He was 34 and left behind his partner, Tanya, and his son, Kye, and daughter, Névé.

Petersen, the youngest of three, learned to love the mountains at an early age from his brothers, Lindsay and Rick. He skied the most treacherous mountains in the world and graced the covers of many international magazines.

"I felt that my world had fallen in and I was lost after Trevor died," she says. "I missed his spirit, his love of life, of the mountains and his family."

Stewart spent two years undergoing therapy to deal with that loss and wondered

Doing what he loved best

"He once said to me, 'mom, if I should ever die doing this, know that I was exactly where I wanted to be, doing exactly what I wanted.' But we all miss him."

Justin Trudeau champions backcountry safety after loss youth avalanche-education programs.

Justin Trudeau knows too well that an avalanche doesn't pause to ask a person's last name when it barrels down a mountain.

The Liberal leadership contender lost his youngest brother, Michel, when an avalanche swept him into B.C.'s Kokanee Lake while he was backcountry skiing in 1998. He was 23.

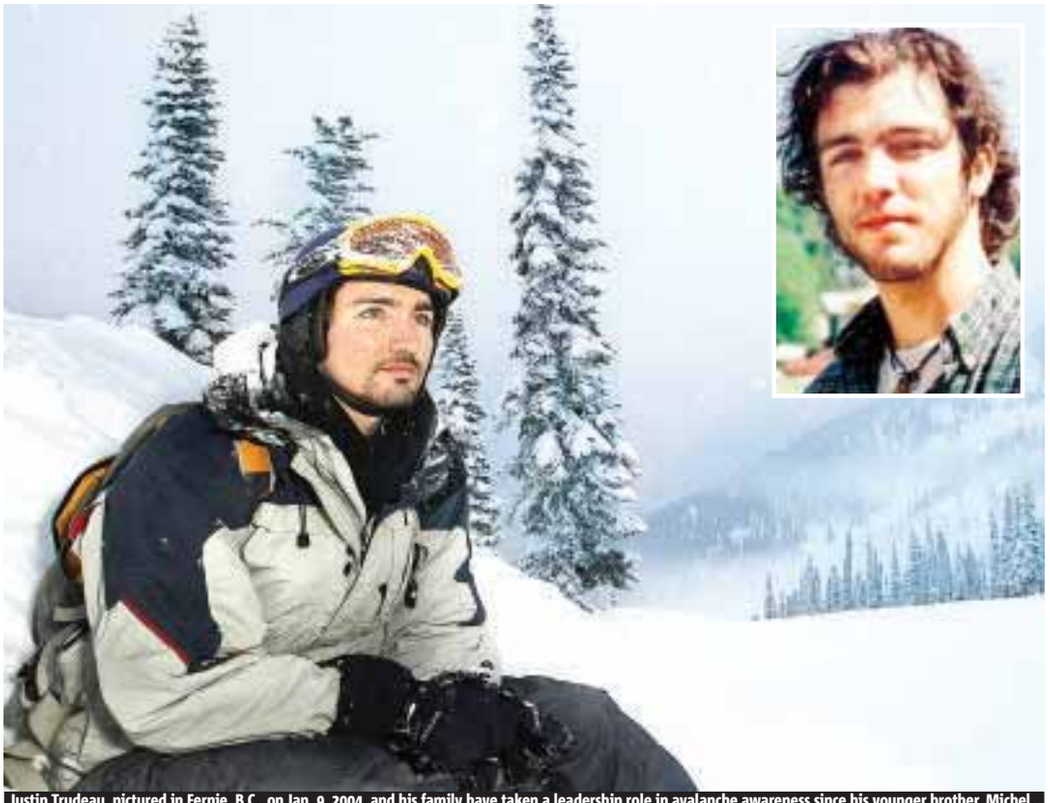
In the wake of the tragedy, Trudeau and his family became a force in raising awareness and funds for Canada's avalanche-safety organizations.

"We said, 'Please don't send flowers, send a donation to —' and then we tried to figure out what the Canadian avalanche community was," Trudeau said in a phone interview from Prince George. "They needed support, and I got involved."

Trudeau worked with the Canadian Avalanche Association to secure stable funding from the B.C., Alberta and federal governments and to build the Canadian Avalanche Centre until he entered politics in 2006.

"For me it was an opportunity to get to know this amazing sport and to get to know this world so well that my brother loved so much. It got me closer to him and his memory," he said. "There's just an amazing group of people committed to our extraordinary wilderness and playing safe within it."

It took the Strathcona-Tweedsmuir School accident, where seven children on an outdoor-education trip died in a slide near B.C.'s Rogers Pass, he said, to change public perception toward avalanche awareness. He credits ski patrols, scientists and the backcountry community for putting Canada at the forefront of avalanche safety in the decade since.



Justin Trudeau, pictured in Fernie, B.C., on Jan. 9, 2004, and his family have taken a leadership role in avalanche awareness since his younger brother, Michel, inset, died in a B.C. avalanche accident in 1998. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE; INSET: THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Now, he says, it's important to turn toward structured avalanche education.

"We have a generation of people who are out there who are all about getting more extreme, getting more active, getting involved," he said, adding that better equipment has made the backcountry more accessible. "They need to be a little bit more aware so they can take smart risks."

Fundraising

"We said, 'Please don't send flowers, send a donation.'"

Justin Trudeau, on helping the Canadian Avalanche Association secure stable funding following the death of his brother, Michel.

No stranger to the backcountry himself — he lived and taught snowboarding in Whistler in 1997 — Trudeau understands the draw and the pure feeling of "earning your turns."

"It's not about preventing people from going out there, it's about giving them the tools and the knowledge to make sure they're doing it safely."

what she could do to help others.

She got together with five other moms who had lost sons and daughters on the mountains and formed a group called Parents of Lost Skiers (POLS) in 1998.

"My intention was to carry on his method, his way and his love of others by helping them as they go on through life," Stewart says.

Since then, Stewart has gotten thousands of phone calls and emails from parents all over the world eager to ask questions on how she survived and dealt with her grief.

A couple from Texas visited Stewart more than a year ago at her home in West Vancouver. Their son died on Mount Seymour in B.C. a few years ago.

POLS' mission

Parents of Lost Skiers' mission statement:

- "To help, encourage and support parents who have lost a child to the mountains and to support the safety and the education of young people who feel the call of the mountains."

"We had lunch and talked. We parted, and the husband came running to me and told me what POLS meant to them," Stewart says. "He told me his wife two weeks ago had everything ready to commit suicide. She didn't want to live if she couldn't be with her son."

Stewart had sent an email to the woman earlier, encouraging her to go day-by-day.

"She confessed to her husband that she's thrown all the stuff away and decided not to go through with it," she says. "She decided if one person can do it, then maybe she can do it."

Stewart says everything she does is a tribute to her son, who died doing what he loved best.

"He once said to me, 'Mom, if I should ever die doing this, know that I was exactly where I wanted to be, doing exactly what I wanted,'" she says. "But we all miss him."

Hostage standoff. Alleged killer remains with child in underground bunker

Speaking into a ventilation pipe, hostage negotiators tried to talk a man into releasing a five-year-old boy and ending a standoff at an underground bunker in rural Alabama that stretched into its third day.

The man identified by multiple neighbours and witnesses as 65-year-old retired truck driver Jimmy Lee Dykes was accused of pulling the boy from a school bus on Tuesday and killing the driver. The man and boy were holed up in a small room on his property that authorities compared to tornado shelters common in the area.

James Arrington, police chief of the neighbouring town of Pinckard, said the shelter was about four feet underground, with a ventilation pipe that negotiators were speaking through.

There were signs that the standoff could continue for some time: A state legislator said the shelter has electricity, food and TV. The police chief said the captor has been sleeping and told negotiators that he has spent long periods in the shelter before.

"He will have to give up sooner or later because (authorities) are not leaving," Arrington said. "It's pretty small, but he's been known to stay in there eight days."

Midland City Mayor Virgil Skipper said he has been briefed by law enforcement and visited with the boy's parents. "He's crying for his parents," he said.

The normally quiet road was teeming Thursday with more than a dozen police cars and trucks, a fire truck, a helicopter, media and at least one ambulance near Midland City, population 2,300.

When the gunman went down the aisle, Poland tried to block him, authorities said.

For real this time

Beyonce sings the national anthem during a news conference Thursday in New Orleans. The singer answered critics of her Inauguration Day performance the best way she could — with another sterling performance of the national anthem. The difference? On Thursday, it was live. She admitted during her Super Bowl news conference that when she performed for President Barack Obama and the nation, she decided to sing to a prerecorded track because she didn't have time to practice. She said she wanted the day to go off without a hitch. MATT SLOCUM/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Blaer hitch. Icelandic teen wins bid to keep 'inappropriate' name

A 15-year-old Icelandic girl has been granted the right to legally use the name given to her by her mother, despite the opposition of authorities and Iceland's strict law on names.

Reykjavik District Court ruled Thursday that the name Blaer can be used. It means light breeze.

The decision overturns an earlier rejection by Icelandic authorities who declared it was not a proper feminine name. Until now, Blaer Bjarkardottir had been identified simply as Girl in communications with officials.

"I'm very happy," she said after the ruling. "I'm glad this is over. Now I expect I'll have to get new identity papers. Finally, I'll have the name Blaer in my passport."

Like a handful of other countries, including Germany and Denmark, Iceland has official rules about what a baby can be named.

HMV tweets its match over mass firings

Twitter outburst.
Verified account commandeered during layoff by music retailer

An employee apparently fired from music retailer HMV in the U.K. let loose on the company's Twitter feed Thursday, comparing the latest round of layoffs to a mass execution.

The rogue messages — which immediately attracted media attention — started with a missive saying "we're tweeting live from HR where we're all being fired! Exciting!!"

"There are over 60 of us being fired at once! Mass execution, of loyal employees who love the brand," another message said.

The person's identity wasn't clear but the Twitter messages came from the company's verified account, suggesting an employee was responsible.

In a statement, Deloitte, HMV's administrator, said that there had been 190 layoffs, most of them at the company's head office.

"Although such decisions are always difficult, it is a necessary step in restructuring the business to enhance the prospects of securing its future as a going concern," Deloitte's Nick Edwards said in a statement.

Deloitte didn't immediately return a message seeking comment about the online outbursts, although it appears that someone eventually took control of the account. The offending Twitter messages — including one which said "what have we to lose? It's been a pleasure folks!" — were deleted about an hour after they were first sent out.

Canada's HMV unaffected by British company's woes

- British music and entertainment giant HMV is scrambling to stay afloat amid stiff competition from online retailers and digital downloading services.
- However, HMV Canada's 113 stores are not affected because Hilco UK, a specialist in restructuring retail businesses, bought the Canadian operations for about $3.2 million in 2011.

Potash Corp. 4th quarter.
Sales and profits not what analysts estimated

Potash Corp. profits fell by 38 per cent in the fourth quarter, missing analyst expectations, as customers held off on buying crop nutrients while international sales contracts were worked out.

The fertilizer producer's net income was $421 million US, or 48 cents per share in the last three months of 2012. Analysts surveyed by Thomson Reuters were, on average, expecting Potash Corp. to post earnings of 57 cents per share.

During the same quarter of 2011, the Saskatoon-based company (TSX:POT) posted earnings of $683 million, or 78 cents per share.

CEO Bill Doyle said demand for all three major types of fertilizer — potash, phosphate and nitrogen — was affected by "the absence of significant immediate needs and amid lack of direction, particularly in phosphate and potash."

"Despite these temporary challenges, we operated with a consistent approach — temporarily slowing potash production and leveraging our diversified product mix in our other nutrients — to best position our company for the expected rebound in fertilizer demand in 2013."

Potash, the mineral from which the company derives its name, normally sees a dip in demand around this time of year, but it was made more severe this time as buyers waited for contracts to be settled before committing to purchase supply.

Meanwhile, things appear to be looking up. A recent contract settlement with China has boosted buyer confidence and the company expects global potash shipments in 2013 to be between 55 million and 57 million tonnes — well ahead of the 51 million tonnes it shipped last year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Retail pain spreads as Sears lays off 700, Best Buy closes stores

Sears Canada announced Thursday it is laying off 700 workers across the country as part of a move to "right-size" the company and focus on restructuring its business.

The national retailer says 360 people are being laid off from its department stores and about 300 from its distribution centres. The remaining workers are being let go from head office and other support areas.

The job cuts will be across Canada.

Sears Canada has been revamping operations to encourage more customers to return to its stores after years of declining sales, and also to prepare for the entry of numerous U.S. retailers, including discount chain Target.

Meanwhile, Best Buy Canada has closed eight Future Shop and seven Best Buy big-box stores across the country.

The company says as part of its "transformational plan" it will open Future Shop small-concept web stores and Best Buy Mobile locations across Canada in the next year and a half.

"This move will enable the company to better serve its customers in both more locations and smaller markets across the country," the company said.

Some 900 employees will be laid off because of the closures, representing less than five per cent of Best Buy Canada's workforce, a spokeswoman said.

1 Game of Thrones. When Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands announced she would abdicate her throne in favour of her son, some expected Queen Elizabeth to do the same, but Lizzie ain't budging. Prince Charles is 64 and has been in line for the throne since he was three, the longest wait in British history. Instead, poor Charles is relegated to the mundane tasks of travelling the world, eating at ridiculously over-priced restaurants, and watching the ballet.

2 Beam me up. Russian astronauts aboard the International Space Station succeeded in transferring 400 megabytes of data to their ground station via laser communication channel for the first time in international practice. The breakthrough brings them one step closer to their eventual goal of downloading porn in space.

3 ... and speaking of porn. Adult-film star Ron Jeremy was left in critical condition this week following the discovery of a heart aneurysm that required surgery. I wish him the best and a speedy recovery, but I'm guessing the situation may have been brought on by repeated shifts in the flow of blood. Just sayin'.

4 Bowl busters. Super Bowl Sunday is looming and there has been more talk of Beyoncé lip-syncing than football. My position on this is best illustrated in the words of Steve Martin, who co-starred with the singer in the film The Pink Panther, when he says, "Stop badgering her. Can't you see she's sexy!?"

5 Why-arton? Groundhog Day is upon us once again. Obviously there is no better scientific system of climate prognostication than for a subterranean-dwelling rodent to tell us how many weeks are left of winter, but we wacky, unconventional types like to wing it with a crazy little instrument known to our ancestors as a CALENDAR.

6 Superstition. This week in 1986, Diana Ross married Norwegian shipping magnate Arne Næss Jr. in Geneva. Stevie Wonder performed at the reception. The couple divorced in 2000, proving once again that Stevie's just bad luck.

7 Sexy brekkie. Let's face it, Canadians love cereal. And sex. Not necessarily at the same time (and probably not in that order). Well, now Peter Ehrlich, a former columnist and radio host, has burst onto the breakfast market with Sexcereal. The tasty health food is sweeping the nation with gender-specific nutrients that also promote sexual health, but beware not to mix up the bags. I missed a half day of work because I couldn't decide which shoes to wear. Watch Dragons' Den on Feb. 10 to find out more.

8 Can't buy me love. What would Valentine's Day be if you couldn't buy yourself a date? Shannon Hunter's third annual Love A Heart bachelor/bachelorette auction will once again raise money for The Heart and Stroke Foundation. The event takes place at The Hideout in Toronto on Feb. 14, but guests from all over Canada are expected. Waterfall makes circular rainbow

Cambré, a 42-year-old lawyer from Brussels, captured the shot from Livingstone Island, which is on the edge of the falls. METRO

Photographer's viewpoint

"Capturing the rainbow over the falls was more challenging than I thought, especially with the spray. On Livingstone Island on top of the falls I finally managed to capture this full rainbow."

Full-circle phenomenon

The lower the sun, the higher the bow

It's very rare to see a full-circle rainbow as the bottom is usually blocked by one's horizon.

The sun's height determines how much of an arc you see; the lower the sun, the higher the top of the rainbow. Some rainbows continue even below the horizon. Mountain climbers see more of a full-circle, while pilots have reported seeing genuine full-circle rainbows. METRO

Rainbow by moonlight

Don't need sun to make a rainbow

Victoria Falls is also famous for its "moonbows," or lunar rainbows.

Moonlight shines on the water, and while it is hard for the human eye to detect it, the bow's colours will appear in long-exposure photographs.

The moonbows are rare because a number of conditions are required: the moon must be less than 42 degrees high in a very dark sky. METRO

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The day the music died

Feb. 3, 1959. The Reel Guys remember Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and The Big Bopper with movie picks that pay tribute to their legacies

Richard: Mark, Buddy Holly was arguably the biggest star of the three musicians, so it's no surprise that he pops up in the most movies. Gary Busey is the most famous of the Holly impersonators, having been nominated for an Oscar for The Buddy Holly Story, but others have also donned the black rims to good effect. An unknown actor named Guy Kent raved on in a surreal retelling of Buddy's life called The Day the Music Died. Less successful was Frankie Muniz who should have been (Peggy) sued for his performance in Walk Hard: The Dewey Cox Story.

Mark: Buddy Holly was surely the genius of the three. And I think The Buddy Holly Story did him justice. It was Gary Busey's last significant lead, and I think it's ironic that the madman actor played one of the few levelheaded stars of rock 'n' roll. La Bamba is a step down in rock biopics. Valens only had a nine-month career, and you can feel the story padding in the film. But worst of all was the sentimental ending with his brother blubbering on about the loss. Again, it was Lou Diamond Phillips' last significant lead before he became the straight-to-video champ.

RC: He may not be the biggest box office draw, but anyone who watched Celebrity Cook Off knows he's a helluva chef. I regard his homemade Wild Turkey Bourbon Barbecue Sauce as highly as his work in Young Guns or Stand and Deliver. But back to the movies. I liked La Bamba more than you, even though Phillips was way too old to play the 18-year-old singer. Most of it is Hollywood hokum, but the music by Los Lobos is good! Maybe you'd enjoy Lives and Deaths of the Poets more. It's a collection of short skits about famous writers and musicians, including Valens.

MB: You'll notice no one is rushing to make The Big Bopper biopic. But here's a guy who would have been a footnote in rock history except that he got on that ill-fated plane, forever linking him in our minds with the great Buddy Holly. Bad life choice for the Bopper, but ultimately a good career move.

RC: I think his life would make a good movie. He was a colourful character — a singer, a flamboyant DJ who wrote some big hits for other people. If they can make a film about payola king Alan Freed they could certainly find enough material for a Big Bopper biopic.

MB: I suspect the Freed movie, American Hot Wax, was as much about the artists that revolved around him as Freed himself. Not a half-bad movie either.

Synopsis

For music fans of a certain age, Feb. 3 is a day to observe a moment of silence. Known as the day the music died, it's the day, in 1959, when a small plane crashed outside Clear Lake, Iowa, killing rock 'n' rollers Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and JP "The Big Bopper" Richardson.

Fair's fair

"If they can make a film about payola king Alan Freed they could certainly find enough material for a Big Bopper biopic."

Jason Bateman puts on a familiar Identity

Interview. Arrested Development star talks about the move to Netflix and his new comedy project Identity Thief

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

Jason Bateman is getting used to playing the straight-man role in comedy projects. HANDOUT

Being the straight man in a comedy can be a thankless job, but Jason Batemen has no problem with that. His latest, Identity Thief, finds him taking on Melissa McCarthy's titular con woman. Plus, this spring he gets to reprise his best-loved straight man role, as put-upon Michael Bluth in Arrested Development, when the cult hit returns with new episodes on Netflix. Still, if you've got a more outlandish comedy role in mind, he's willing to listen.

Do you find it at all insulting to be asked how hard it is to keep a straight face opposite someone like Melissa McCarthy?
No, actually, I've never taken it that way. That's tough to do, and I fail miserably at it repeatedly, especially with Melissa. You've just got to have the camera on her alone so that when I start laughing you don't see my shoulders bouncing up and down in the foreground.

You've made quite a career of playing the straight man, but have you been looking for parts beyond that type?
Yeah, I mean I would enjoy doing that. Send them. I'll read them and do them. But I get most of my opportunities doing what people have seen me do before, and I don't think that's too dissimilar from most actors. You kind of get offered what people expect to see you in. So it's up to me to start to steer the ship in another direction if I want some changes. And I do, every once in a while. That was one of the things that really attracted me to a film I did with Ryan Reynolds called the Change-Up. It didn't really work at the box office or critically, but we had a really good time doing it.

Was it Melissa or writer Craig Mazin who kept adding in jokes about you having mangled junk in Identity Thief?
Well, Craig's pretty filthy. Craig wrote a script that didn't need any ad-libbing whatsoever to make it funny, and so we didn't do a lot of that. We would every once in a while make stuff up to crack each other up and make the crew laugh, but this isn't one of those movies where it's, 'Boy, thank God those actors improvised because otherwise it wouldn't be funny.' Craig Mazin did a really, really good job.

So he's the one obsessed with you having messed-up junk?
He loves my junk. Or he loves my messed-up junk. He wants bad things to happen to it because I won't give it to him.

True or false: You are the only Bluth family member to appear in each of the new episodes of Arrested Development.
I believe that is true. I haven't seen them, he's still editing them, but that was the goal when Mitch (Hurwitz) and I talked about these episodes early on. There was a question as to whether the finances or the scheduling would allow for all of us to be in every episode, and I said, 'Whatever it takes schedule-wise or finance-wise, I'm your guy.' So we worked it out and we just made sure that I was done with all of my duties before I had to go off and do something else.

Any word on returning guest stars?
I think Mitch has already said that a few people are coming back. I think he's mentioned Carl Weathers and Henry Winkler and ... who else did he mention? James Lipton and Andy Richter. There's many more. And then his ideas for the movie are just insane. So hopefully Act II and Act III will happen, which is the movie. I can't wait to see what he does with all this footage. We still have a little bit of additional stuff to do. I work one more day on it in a week or two.

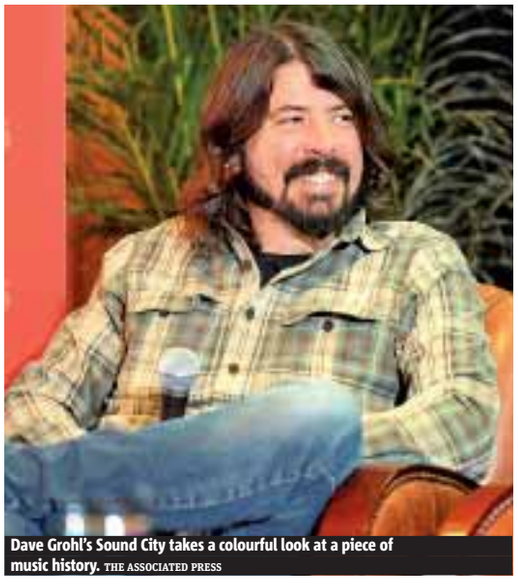
The secret behind Nevermind

Movie. Dave Grohl's movie, Sound City, takes a particular interest in the studio where Nirvana found their break



Dave Grohl's Sound City takes a colourful look at a piece of music history. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rock musician Dave Grohl set out to make a recording studio the subject of his first-ever film. He was intrigued not only by the studio but by a specific piece of recording equipment — a 1970s era sound board — that captured every note of music made there.

Geek city, right? It sounds like an idea any sane moviegoer would run from.

Instead, Sound City offers a colourful piece of music history, a candid examination of changes wrought by technology and a defiant statement about not surrendering the human element in creativity. Grohl's rookie film made it to the Sundance movie festival, is being released theatrically Friday and is accompanied by an album featuring artists he interviewed.

"It honestly was more like a keg party with a camera than making a Hollywood film," he said.

Grohl knew nothing about the Sound City studio in Van Nuys, Calif., when he and fellow Nirvana members Kurt Cobain and Krist Novoselic booked a session to make Nevermind in 1991. Their California record company wanted Nirvana nearby to keep an eye on them and time at Sound City was cheap.

It was in a nondescript neighbourhood and looked like a dump, with tired shag carpeting. Then Nirvana noticed all the gold records on the wall from artists who had recorded there: Fleetwood Mac, Tom Petty, Van Halen, REO Speedwagon, Guns 'n Roses, Neil Young, Cheap Trick, Slayer, Rick Springfield and more.

After plugging in their instruments and running through In Bloom, Grohl and his mates discovered why. The sound, to their ears, was amazing. Nirvana had never been captured with such clarity and power before.

"You might have never heard of Nirvana if we had recorded in Hollywood with a fancy producer who made us sound like Def Leppard," he said. "The fact that that (sound) board made us sound like us is what people appreciated. To be reunited with it, honestly, it was like meeting your real parents for the first time."

Romantic Comedy

Warm Bodies

Director. Jonathan Levine

Stars. Nicholas Hoult, Teresa Palmer

Warm Bodies doesn't stink nearly as much as I imagine its leading character would. A rom-com set in an apocalyptic near-future ruled by rambling rotten corpses, the film focuses on a love-lorn zombie crushing on a gorgeous living girl. Basically a spin on Romeo and Juliet (if Romeo were dead, that is), the comedy has youthful quirk and charm, but its modesty will likely aggravate purists looking for cinematic zombie gore. STEVE GOW

Comedy

Stand Up Guys

Director. Fisher Stevens

Stars. Al Pacino, Alan Arkin, Christopher Walken

This story of three old hoodlums on one last adventure is slightly less than the sum of its parts. Combined, the leads — Al Pacino, Alan Arkin and Christopher Walken — bring with them more than a century of screen work, and it shows. It's too bad, then, that the material contains Viagra jokes that would seem more appropriate in a Grumpy Old Men movie. That and the long shadow of Tarantino that blankets almost every scene. RICHARD CROUSE

Zombies vs. vampires

"I think tonally it's very different — Warm Bodies to Twilight. There's a lot of comedy, we don't take ourselves too seriously. But having said that, we of course embrace comparisons in a sense because Twilight is a hugely successful franchise and if we can find half the audience that Twilight has I think we'd be very happy."

Teresa Palmer, during a recent interview in Toronto, when asked if people would compare Warm Bodies to Twilight THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jennifer Lawrence

Tip for Jennifer Lawrence: no more shopping trips now that you're famous

Oscar-nominee Jennifer Lawrence recently told Metro that her Silver Linings Playbook co-star Bradley Cooper had taught her that she can't go to the grocery store anymore now that she's famous.

"It's fine, I can get friends to get my groceries," she said last month.

But apparently Lawrence thought the height of awards season was a good time to try again, as she was spotted this week at a Los Angeles supermarket, buying groceries incognito under a large purple hat and a massive scarf, according to photo agency X-17.

Mayer more comfortable in front of the cameras

John Mayer is definitely mellowing when it comes to dealing with paparazzi.

"The way that the media plays a part in everyone's life has changed over the last several years," he tells RollingStone.com. "I mean, I used to be incredibly put off by somebody taking a picture, thinking as if in some way it was invading my brain. But all it is, is you can see where I was last weekend. That's all. And I think time has shown that nothing will be stolen from you. It's just a photograph of you and your dumb scarf that you put on because it wouldn't fit in your suitcase. Cool."

Lo and behold, Lindsay makes it to court

Lindsay Lohan wasn't too sick to fly after all. Despite reportedly being too under the weather to make it from New York back to L.A. this week for a Wednesday court date, the troubled actress showed up after all, wearing a little black dress and Louboutin heels, according to the Associated Press.

"I'm glad to see you're feeling better," Judge Stephanie Sautner told Lohan at the hearing. Lohan pleaded not guilty to three misdemeanor counts stemming from a car crash last summer. If found guilty, she could face 245 days in jail because of probation violations. "She's on probation," Sautner said at the hearing. "The condition is that she obey all laws."

Wash down game snacks

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

When it comes to pairing liquids with solids, wine has the edge over its boozy competition. After all, you're not going to wash down haute cuisine with a brewski. Right?

It really depends on where you are.

In wine engaged cultures (like France and Italy), culinary artists evolved their industry in parallel with their compatriots in nearby vineyards. So, it makes sense that locals reach for vino when they put on the feed bag.

Countries like the United Kingdom and Belgium — where wine production is nearly non-existent — have a closer affinity to beer, which makes a good brew their primary dinner table mate.

Since the Super Bowl is this Sunday, I'm betting most of you will be serving pub-inspired fare and drinking like the Brits as you watch the game.

Not that you can't serve wine (think something white and off dry). It's just that aggressively flavoured finger food, the likes of Buffalo Chicken Tenders and Short Ribs, calls for something cool and thirst-quenching. While a crisp Euro or Canadian lager fits the bill, I prefer medium-bodied, lightly malted ales like Newcastle Brown Ale (500 ml, $2.90 to $3.49) from England's north east.

Bite into lighter side of Super Bowl staple

Buffalo Chicken Tenders. Put aside the deep fryer and pop these crunchy snacks into the oven

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The key food groups of Super Bowl are meat and melted cheese, preferably deep-fried. Buffalo-style chicken wings and chicken nuggets are just the sort of deep-fried deliciousness we're talking about. And this recipe marries the two, incredibly, in a way that satisfies the soul and keeps blood whistling through the old arteries.

The chicken is luxuriated in a buttermilk bath for several hours, after which it is coated with a mixture of breadcrumbs and panko (for extra crunch), and baked in the oven.

It's not quite as crispy as a deep-fried version, but it is nonetheless ridiculously flavourful. This effect is achieved by adding a blue cheese dipping sauce, which borrows one of the trademark ingredients of Buffalo chicken wings. Traditionally, wings are tossed in a mix of hot sauce and butter after they come out of hot oil. But you don't want to sog up your finished product, so dip the finished baked tenders, first in the hot sauce then in the blue cheese. This combo is a touchdown.

Ingredients

- 2 garlic cloves, smashed
- 1 tsp salt
- 1/4 cup plus 2 tbsp hot sauce, divided
- 2 cups plus 6 tbsp buttermilk, divided
- 1 lb chicken tenders (or chicken breasts cut into 3-by-1-inch strips, 1/2-inch thick)
- 3/4 cup whole-wheat Italian seasoned breadcrumbs
- 1/4 cup panko breadcrumbs
- 1/4 cup low-fat mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
- 1/2 tsp lemon juice

1. In bowl, combine garlic, salt, 2 tablespoons of hot sauce and 2 cups of the buttermilk. Whisk until salt dissolves. Add chicken tenders and stir to coat well with the marinade. Cover and refrigerate for at least 2 hours and up to 10 hours.

2. When ready to cook, heat oven to 425 F. Line baking sheet with parchment paper and spray it with olive oil cooking spray.

3. In shallow bowl combine whole-wheat and panko breadcrumbs. In another small bowl, whisk remaining 6 tablespoons of buttermilk, the mayonnaise, blue cheese and lemon juice. Transfer to ramekin for dipping. Pour remaining 1/4 cup of hot sauce into a second ramekin for dipping.

4. Use colander to drain chicken, but do not pat it dry. Dip each chicken piece in the breadcrumb mixture, making sure it is coated well on both sides. Arrange chicken in single layer on prepared baking sheet, then spritz tops with olive oil cooking spray.

5. Bake on oven's middle shelf for 10 minutes. Turn chicken pieces over and bake an additional 5 minutes, or until just cooked through. Let cool few minutes, then transfer to a platter. Serve with both dipping sauces.

Stick-to-your-ribs grub

1. In a medium bowl, whisk together the hoisin, rice vinegar, soy sauce, brown sugar, red pepper flakes, five-spice powder, sesame oil and garlic. Reserve 1/2 cup of the mixture in a small bowl. Add the short ribs to the original mixture and toss to thoroughly coat. Cover the bowl and refrigerate at least 8 hours, or overnight.

2. When ready to cook, heat the oven to 275 F. Line 2 rimmed baking sheets with foil and place a rack over each pan. Arrange the short ribs on the rack and bake for 45 to 60 minutes, or until tender. Brush the ribs with the reserved 1/2 cup of marinade and increase the oven temperature to 450 F. Return to the oven and cook for another 10 minutes, or until browned and caramelized.

3. Thread a skewer through each piece of meat to serve.

NHLers acting out after the lockout

NHL. Pent up aggression, giving fans what they want and trying to keep a roster spot among reasons for increase in fisticuffs

Wanna fight?

If you're an NHL player, you can probably find somebody to drop the gloves.

A lockout-delayed and shortened season has created a spike in fights around the league, just as it did the last time labour woes led to a 48-game season.

There were 58 fights through the first 87 games this year, following play on Tuesday night, an increase from 39 after the same number of games last season, according to STATS. During the 1994-95 season, there were 83 fights over the first 87 games of that lockout-shortened slate, a jump from 58 during the same stretch the previous season.

"Obviously, you have a situation where the players are being thrown into the immediate intensity of a shortened season and that certainly may play a role," NHL deputy commissioner Bill Daly wrote Thursday in an email to The Associated Press. "We monitor these things as well, and the number of fighting majors have decreased significantly and begun to normalize over the last week. I expect that will continue over the balance of the season."

There were, in fact, fewer fighting penalties than games on Monday for the first time since the season started with 12 fights in 13 games. And on Wednesday, there were six fights in four games.

Nashville forward Richard Clune acknowledges he's fighting for his job. Clune has been trying to make it back in the NHL since playing in 14 games with the Los Angeles Kings three years ago. He was in three fights in his first five games.

Clune didn't play in Nashville's opener when star defenceman Shea Weber got into a rare fight with Columbus forward Jared Boll, the first NHL player to five fights this season. Clune, perhaps not coincidently, was in the lineup for the next game and tried to make his presence felt right away by getting penalized for boarding in the opening minutes.

"I play hard and get in the other team's faces and sometimes it results in dropping the gloves," Clune said in a telephone interview before playing on the road against the Kings.

Moore succumbs to injuries after snowmobile crash

Caleb Moore, an innovative freestyle snowmobile rider who was hurt in a crash at the Winter X Games in Colorado, died Thursday morning. He was 25.

Moore was being treated at a hospital in Grand Junction since the Jan. 24 crash. Family spokeswoman Chelsea Lawson confirmed his death, the first in the 18-year history of the X Games.

"He lived his life to the fullest. He was an inspiration," Lawson said.

Moore was attempting a backflip when his snowmobile caught the lip of the landing area, sending him over the handlebars. He landed face first in the snow with his snowmobile rolling over him. Moore eventually walked off with help and went to hospital with a concussion. He developed bleeding around his heart and was flown to Grand Junction for surgery. The family later said that Moore also had a complication involving his brain.

Only 1 team's road ends in victory

Super Bowl preview. Both Ravens and 49ers, led by sibling head coaches, ready to battle in New Orleans

The San Francisco 49ers never have tasted defeat in a Super Bowl, going 5-0. It's the most impressive mark for any franchise in the big game.

Baltimore also is undefeated, with the Ravens winning their only appearance, in 2001.

Someone will have the Super Bowl blahs for the first time after Sunday's title game in the Superdome.

The Ravens, who are 3 1/2 -point underdogs, are on one of those runs reminiscent of recent NFL champions. Indeed, the New York Giants reached the Super Bowl a year ago in a similar manner, winning a wild-card game at home, then two playoffs on the road, including an overtime thriller.

The Giants got healthy down the stretch, something the Ravens have replicated, particularly on defence where star linebackers Ray Lewis and Terrell Suggs are giving vintage performances following injury-shortened seasons.

Quoted

"I believe we have found a way to believe in each other, and nothing else matters."

Baltimore Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis, who will retire after the game, on his team's attitude.

Road to the Super Bowl

- Baltimore's path to New Orleans led through New England, where the Ravens fell to the Patriots in last year's AFC title game. But they outscored the Patriots 21-0 in the second half to earn their spot in the Super Bowl.
- San Francisco also came up one win short a year ago, losing to the Giants for the NFC championship. That defeat has driven the 49ers just as much as the Ravens' failure in 2011 lifted them.

"That's what's been our road," Lewis said. "No matter who's been up, who's been down, who's been hurt, who's been injured. We found a way to pick each other up."

These Niners are built around a physical, stingy defence — that also has been the Ravens' persona for years, although not as much in 2012 as in Lewis's other 17 pro seasons. Linebacker Patrick Willis, who like Lewis wears No. 52 and is a perennial All-Pro, is the anchor.

"As a kid, you grew up watching," Willis said. "Last year we were one game away. To be able to be here is truly special."

To make it extra special, San Francisco's offence will need to outdo Baltimore's. The Ravens have scored 90 points in three games, and the Niners have 73 in two.

Baltimore's defence has made big plays against Andrew Luck, Peyton Manning and Tom Brady. Now it gets an entirely different type of quarterback, Colin Kaepernick. His combination of running skill, powerful arm and surprising cool for a second-year pro makes him particularly dangerous against the Ravens. Baltimore does not have the fastest defence in the league.

Then again, the 49ers must deal with Joe Flacco, the only QB to win a post-season game in each of his first five seasons. Flacco also has six road playoff victories, a league record.

While the Ravens and 49ers play for each other, the Harbaugh brothers, John of the Ravens and Jim of the 49ers, will go against each other in the first Super Bowl featuring sibling head coaches. They've had fun with the topic this week, but it will be as serious as football can get on Sunday.

Forgotten QB Taylor will be waiting in the wings on Sunday

Baltimore Ravens backup quarterback Tyrod Taylor runs with the ball against the Cincinnati Bengals Dec. 30 in Cincinnati. ANDY LYONS/GETTY IMAGES

Everyone knows the starters, of course, Baltimore's Joe Flacco and San Francisco's Colin Kaepernick.

They even know about Alex Smith, who started for the 49ers until he was sidelined with a concussion in November and Kaepernick stepped in.

And Taylor? His resumé can be summed up on the top half of an index card: Two years, no starts and 30 passes — 25 of them in the Ravens' meaningless regular-season finale against Cincinnati last month.

That's because Flacco has started every game during the past five seasons and never has missed a down because of injury or ineffectiveness.

Still, Taylor knows he's only one play away from getting into the Super Bowl, and for that reason he's practising hard this week as Sunday's championship game draws near.

"There are so many situations throughout the league where the next guy is called in, so you can't look at how many straight games Joe has played without being injured," Taylor said. "You never know what can happen at any second of the game. I have to be ready to take over if that happens."

Being a backup QB is a role Taylor takes seriously. He isn't in the Big Easy this week to take a stroll on Bourbon Street or munch on beignets.

"You have to be ready to play," Taylor said. "That's how you have to carry yourself throughout the week as far as preparation. You have to be physically prepared and mentally prepared because you never know when the opportunity may come."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wrinkle in Ravens attack?

The 49ers are preparing for Tyrod Taylor, too.

- While Flacco is a traditional pocket passer, Taylor is just as likely to scoot downfield as throw the ball.
- He ran for 65 yards in a game against the Bengals, and at Virginia Tech he set a school record for rushing yards by a quarterback (2,196).

'Operation Red Zone'

Officials nab phoney merch

Investigators have confiscated more than $13.6 million US worth of phoney sports merchandise over the past five months and expect to seize more in New Orleans during Super Bowl week, a federal law-enforcement official said Thursday.

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement Director John Morton said authorities also have shut down more than 300 websites selling counterfeit goods as part of an enforcement effort dubbed "Operation Red Zone." The operation targeted international shipments of jerseys, hats and other souvenirs entering the U.S. for sale by stores, flea markets and street vendors.

And federal investigators say they have intelligence that shows even the Mexican drug cartels are getting involved in the counterfeit NFL black market trade because they can make quick money by selling fake jerseys in flea markets and parking lots.

In September, for example, HSI's newly created trade enforcement unit seized dozens of counterfeit San Francisco 49ers, Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins jerseys around New Mexico.

No HGH tests despite deal

Count Baltimore Ravens defensive end Arthur Jones among those NFL players who want the league and union to finally agree on a way to do blood testing for human growth hormone.

"It would be fair to do blood testing," Jones said. "Hopefully they figure it out."

When the Ravens face the San Francisco 49ers in the Super Bowl on Sunday, two seasons will have come and gone without a single HGH test being administered, even though the league and the NFL Players Association paved the way for it in the 10-year collective bargaining agreement they signed in August 2011.

Since then, the sides have haggled over various elements, primarily the union's insistence that it needs more information about the validity of a test that is used by Olympic sports and Major League Baseball. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dancevic could play key role in Davis cup

International tennis. Canada to face a top-ranked Spain team hampered by injuries

A year later, Frank Dancevic knows for certain he will play a key role for Canada in a Davis Cup tie.

The 28-year-old from Niagara Falls, Ont., will take the court for two important singles matches in this weekend's first-round series against Spain, a year after he was an after-thought in Canada's tie against France last February.

"I love playing (in the) Davis Cup," Dancevic said as the draw was announced Thursday at the UBC venue where the best-of-five series will be held. "I've been part of the team for 10 years. It's an awesome feeling to win for your country."

Milos Raonic will kick off Canada's bid for a spot in the Davis Cup World Group quarter-finals.

Raonic, ranked No. 15 on the ATP Tour, will face No. 51 Albert Ramos in the first singles match when Canada's tie with Spain begins Friday.

The hard-serving 22-year-old from Thornhill, Ont., will also face Marcel Granollers in the fourth match on Sunday.

Dancevic, meanwhile, will also face Granollers, Spain's top singles player for this event, on Friday, and Ramos in the final match Sunday.

Dancevic only played last year against France after Raonic was sidelined for his second singles match with a minor knee injury. But Canadian captain Martin Laurendeau is asking Dancevic to be a potentially decisive factor as Vancouver's Vasek Pospisil concentrates on doubles while recuperating from mononucleosis.

"Any time you play for your country, you feel pressure," said Dancevic. "You want to play well for your country and you want to perform out there.

"I feel like I want to play well. I don't know if it's pressure. But I just want to go out there and give it all I've got and perform the best I can."

Opportunity

- Canada, which stands 12th in Davis Cup rankings, has never advanced beyond the first round.
- But the opportunity for an upset is ripe. Spain will be without four of its highest-ranked players — David Ferrer (4th), Rafael Nadal (5th), Nicolas Almagro (11th) and Fernando Verdasco (24th) — this weekend.

Dancevic, who lost to France's Jo-Wilfried Tsonga last year in place of Raonic, will try to re-live some of the Davis Cup magic he displayed in 2003, when he beat Brazil's Flavio Sarretta in four sets in Calgary to return Canada to the World Group (top 16 countries) for the first time in a decade.

"I believe that I belong in the top 100," said Dancevic, who is ranked 166th. "I'm confident that my game is there."

Raptors' Lowry thrilled about new addition from Grizzlies

Kyle Lowry will happily call the Toronto Raptors his team, and is excited about sharing it with one of his best friends.

While Lowry said it was tough to lose Jose Calderon and Ed Davis in Wednesday's deal to acquire Rudy Gay, he was talking up his new teammate to reporters on Thursday, saying the team was getting a "superstar."

There will be an immediate level of comfort between Lowry and Gay. The two are good friends — Gay is godfather to Lowry's son — and as Lowry pointed out, "I've already passed the ball to Rudy before, so ... when he's here, it's going to be an easy transition for him and for our team, I believe."

The deal that sent fan favourite Calderon ultimately to Detroit propelled Lowry back into the starting point guard position.

Leafs one-up Capitals in Toronto

Nikolai Kulemin and Matt Frattin scored third-period goals to give the Toronto Maple Leafs their first home win of the season in a 3-2 comeback victory over the Washington Capitals on Thursday night.

Kulemin tied it at 2-2 at 7:40 of the third period, poking in a puck that squeezed through Michal Neuvirth's legs from a Michael Kostka shot from the point. As the Caps goalie tried in vain to squeeze his pads, Kulemin reached behind and nudged the puck in for his first of the year.

Frattin made it 3-2, capping off a nice passing play with Nazem Kadri at 9:53 of the third by tapping in the puck for his fourth goal — and sixth point — in four games.

The Leafs lived dangerously in the final minutes, with the Caps pressing.

James van Riemsdyk also scored for Toronto (4-3-0), which outshot Washington 40-22. The Leafs had chances to take control earlier, but lacked clinical finishing and failed to convert numerous power-play opportunities. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Penguins' Vokoun shuts out Rangers

Tomas Vokoun stopped 28 shots for his 49th NHL shutout, and the Pittsburgh Penguins scored on the first shot of the first and third periods in a 3-0 victory over the New York Rangers on Thursday night.

Evgeni Malkin gave the Penguins the lead just 1:24 in, James Neal added a power-play goal 28 seconds into the third and Simon Despres netted his second NHL goal to give Pittsburgh (4-3) its second win in five games.

Malkin added an assist, as did captain Sidney Crosby, on Neal's goal.

CFL. Lions re-sign receiver Gore after Canadian led team in receiving in 2012

Shawn Gore considered other options, but decided in the end to stay with what he knew.

The receiver signed a new three-year contract with the B.C. Lions on Thursday after trying out for three NFL clubs and bypassing a chance at CFL free agency.

"I'm really excited that we came to an agreement," said Gore, whose deal includes two years plus an option. "I know where my future is heading for the next little while."

The speedy wideout led the Lions with 722 receiving yards in 2012. The Toronto native has spent three seasons with the team after being selected in the second round (10th overall) in the 2010 Canadian College Draft.

Quoted

"He is a young and very exciting receiver who I believe will give all of us many great moments in the future."

Lions general manager Wally Buono on newly signed receiver Shawn Gore.

Before committing to the Lions, Gore had tryouts out with the New York Jets, New England Patriots and Indianapolis Colts.

"They went well, but I wasn't invited to a training camp," he said. "So I could have done a little better."

Gore, who was due to become a CFL free agent Feb. 15, also wants to do better with the Lions in 2013. He is looking forward to playing a "big offensive" role in place of departed veterans Geroy Simon and Arland Bruce III.

Horoscopes

Aries
March 21 - April 20
You will do your reputation, and maybe your bank balance too, a heap of good today by doing something that takes friends and family by surprise. People expect you to think and act in certain ways — so prove them wrong.

Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Whatever you do and however you do it, people will applaud you for a job well done. Both at home and at work you are leading a charmed life at the moment. Make the most of it. You know it won't last!

Gemini
May 22 - June 21
What you dream of now will come true in the near future, so dream away to your heart's content. It may be that certain people are not taking you seriously but they will soon learn the error of their ways.

Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You may be tempted to treat life as a bit of a joke over the next 24 hours, and most likely you are right to do so. The things that other people get worked up about are not worth the time or effort.

Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Anything is possible if you want it enough. If you really, truly desire something you will find a way to get it. Keep that thought in mind not just today but throughout the coming month. And act on it.

Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You won't lack for self-belief today but watch out you don't get overly confident and make a mess of a task you could usually do with your eyes closed. You know what comes before a fall, don't you? Pride.

Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Try to be a bit more cautious in your decisions today, especially if you are involved in a project that could cost you rather a lot if it goes wrong. Remember: There is no such thing as a sure thing.

Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
This looks like an excellent day for affairs of the heart. If there is someone you have been admiring from afar, now is the time to get up closer. Make contact and look for ways to spark a romance.

Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
No matter how daunting the task that faces you today you will make a good job of it. The most important step is the first one, so stop worrying that you are out of your depth and get cracking.

Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Don't push yourself too hard today. Jupiter, planet of excess, is now moving forwards again through the wellbeing area of your chart, so you may be tempted to do something rash. You'll regret it in the morning.

Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Your task for the day is to help others — not just friends and family but people you meet out in the world as well. The best way to help, as always, is to lead by example. No one does it better than you.

Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
It's OK to have fun — in fact it's essential — but don't go overboard and forget that you still have chores to finish and duties to fulfill. The harder you work now, the happier your weekend will be.
